

STREET ANIMALS — OUR SILENT NEIGHBOURS

A visual guide to their suffering, the reasons behind it, and practical ways society can respond

STREET ANIMALS – OUR SILENT NEIGHBORS

They have no home... no voice... but they have a heart... and they feel everything!

Be Kind
Be Humane
Be the Change

SUMMER HEAT, THIRST & SUFFERING So hot... So thirsty... So helpless... - Scorching heat burns their skin and paws. - No water, no shade, no one to care. - Dehydration, weakness and heat stroke. - They just want a little water and love.	RAINY SEASON WET, COLD & DISEASES Cold rain... No shelter... Just survival... - Get drenched, shiver in cold and mud. - Fall sick with fever, skin infection, mange, worm and other diseases. - No dry place to rest, no proper shelter. - They need warmth, food, treatment and care.	WINTER COLD, HUNGER & HELPLESSNESS Freezing cold... No blanket... Only hope... - Bone-chilling cold, no warmth, no shelter. - Less food, weak and hungry. - Higher risk of infection and illness. - They need blankets, food, medical care and a safe place to sleep.
WHY? THEY ARE ABANDONED - Not useful for milk, work or breeding. - Sick, injured or disabled. - Accidents, neglect or cruelty. - Lack of money and awareness. - Growing urbanization and loss of natural habitats. They are not a burden... They are innocent lives!	SOLUTIONS BY COMMON MEN & GOVERNMENT <table border="1" style="width: 100%; border-collapse: collapse;"> <tr> <th style="background-color: #bbdefb;">WHAT CAN WE DO (As Common Men / Society)</th> <th style="background-color: #bbdefb;">WHAT GOVERNMENT CAN DO</th> </tr> <tr> <td style="padding: 5px;"> - Offer water, food and basic care. - Support animal shelters and rescue helplines. - Report injured or sick animals. - Spread awareness, kindness and compassion. - Stop cruelty and hit-and-run behavior. - Support animal welfare NGOs and local volunteers. Small actions create big change! </td> <td style="padding: 5px;"> - Stricter animal protection laws and enforcement. - More shelters, veterinary hospitals and ambulance services. - Regular feeding & sterilization programs for street animals. - Penalties for cruelty and abandonment. - Create safe zones, water points and feeding areas in cities. Stronger laws + Better facilities = A kinder India </td> </tr> </table>	WHAT CAN WE DO (As Common Men / Society)	WHAT GOVERNMENT CAN DO	- Offer water, food and basic care. - Support animal shelters and rescue helplines. - Report injured or sick animals. - Spread awareness, kindness and compassion. - Stop cruelty and hit-and-run behavior. - Support animal welfare NGOs and local volunteers. Small actions create big change!	- Stricter animal protection laws and enforcement. - More shelters, veterinary hospitals and ambulance services. - Regular feeding & sterilization programs for street animals. - Penalties for cruelty and abandonment. - Create safe zones, water points and feeding areas in cities. Stronger laws + Better facilities = A kinder India	ALTERNATE SOLUTIONS BY RESCUERS & CAREGIVERS They don't just save animals... They save lives — including humans. - Rescue abandoned, injured and sick animals from streets. - Provide medical treatment, food, shelter and rehabilitation. - Spay/neuter to control population and prevent suffering. - Give them love, dignity and a second chance at life. - Many rescuers also help humans in need — the same compassion for all living beings. Their sacrifice is our inspiration...
WHAT CAN WE DO (As Common Men / Society)	WHAT GOVERNMENT CAN DO
- Offer water, food and basic care. - Support animal shelters and rescue helplines. - Report injured or sick animals. - Spread awareness, kindness and compassion. - Stop cruelty and hit-and-run behavior. - Support animal welfare NGOs and local volunteers. Small actions create big change!	- Stricter animal protection laws and enforcement. - More shelters, veterinary hospitals and ambulance services. - Regular feeding & sterilization programs for street animals. - Penalties for cruelty and abandonment. - Create safe zones, water points and feeding areas in cities. Stronger laws + Better facilities = A kinder India
RESCUE • CARE • PROTECT • GIVE THEM A CHANCE They Can't Speak... but they feel... Let your kindness be their voice... Jai Gau Mata Jai Bharat

“They can’t speak... but they feel. Let kindness be their voice.”

The poster presents street animals not as a problem to be removed, but as living beings exposed to heat, rain, cold, hunger, disease, injury and abandonment. It then moves from the causes of suffering to two complementary layers of response: what ordinary citizens and public authorities can do, and what dedicated rescuers and caregivers do every day.

1. THE THREE SEASONS OF SURVIVAL

Street life changes with the weather, but vulnerability remains constant. The poster uses summer, monsoon and winter to show how the same animal may face very different hazards throughout the year.

☀ SUMMER — HEAT, THIRST & SUFFERING	☔ RAINY SEASON — WET, COLD & DISEASES	❄ WINTER — COLD, HUNGER & HELPLESSNESS
Scorching surfaces can burn paws and skin. Without reliable water or shade, animals can become dehydrated, weak and vulnerable to heat stress. A simple bowl of clean water and access to shade can therefore become meaningful emergency support.	Rain can leave animals drenched and shivering, with muddy or contaminated resting areas. Prolonged exposure can worsen weakness and skin problems, while poor sanitation and exposure increase the burden of disease. A dry, warm resting place matters.	Cold nights can be especially difficult for thin, young, old, sick or injured animals. Reduced food availability adds another stressor. Warm bedding, food, medical attention and a protected sleeping place can make a substantial difference.

Key message

Seasonal care is preventive care. Water, shade, dry shelter, nutritious food, parasite control, vaccination where appropriate, wound care and timely veterinary attention can reduce avoidable suffering.

2. WHY DO STREET ANIMALS BECOME ABANDONED?

The poster identifies several overlapping reasons. Abandonment is rarely a single-cause problem; economic hardship, illness, accidents, lack of awareness, urban expansion and irresponsible human behaviour can interact.

1. Loss of perceived usefulness	Animals may be discarded when they are no longer considered useful for milk, work, guarding or breeding.
2. Illness, injury or disability	Sickness, chronic injury and disability can make animals more dependent on human care, increasing the chance of neglect or abandonment.
3. Accidents, neglect and cruelty	Road injuries, deliberate cruelty and prolonged neglect can leave animals unable to survive without intervention.
4. Financial hardship & limited awareness	Care can become difficult when households lack money, information or access to veterinary services.
5. Urbanization & habitat loss	Rapid development reduces safe resting and feeding spaces and increases conflict with traffic and human activity.

“They are not a burden — they are innocent lives.”

3. SOLUTIONS: A SHARED RESPONSIBILITY

The poster deliberately separates community action from government action. Both are needed: citizens can provide immediate help and report cases, while public systems can create durable infrastructure, enforcement and population-management programmes.

WHAT COMMON PEOPLE / SOCIETY CAN DO	WHAT GOVERNMENT / PUBLIC AUTHORITIES CAN DO
• Offer clean water, food and basic care. • Support credible shelters and rescue helplines. • Report injured, sick or distressed animals. • Spread awareness, kindness and responsible coexistence. • Avoid cruelty and hit-and-run behaviour. • Support animal-welfare NGOs and local volunteers.	• Strengthen animal-protection laws and their enforcement. • Expand veterinary hospitals, mobile care and emergency services. • Support regular feeding and sterilization programmes for street animals. • Apply appropriate penalties for cruelty and abandonment. • Develop safe zones, water points and welfare facilities in cities.

A practical principle: small actions create big change. A bowl of water, a safe corner, a phone call to a rescue group, first aid, transport to a veterinarian, sterilization, vaccination and adoption can each address a different part of the problem.

4. THE ALTERNATE SOLUTION: RESCUERS & CAREGIVERS

The final panel highlights the people who intervene when an animal is abandoned, injured or sick. Their work often connects emergency rescue with longer-term rehabilitation.

RESCUE	Bring abandoned, injured and seriously ill animals away from immediate danger.
MEDICAL CARE	Arrange examination, treatment, medicines, wound care, nutrition and follow-up.
SHELTER & REHABILITATION	Provide a protected place to rest, recover and regain strength.
SPAY / NEUTER	Support responsible population management and reduce future unwanted litters.
DIGNITY & COMPASSION	Give animals humane treatment, safety, affection and a chance to recover.
COMMUNITY SERVICE	Many caregivers also support people in need, reflecting a broader culture of compassion.

Rescue is not only the moment of picking up an animal. Responsible rescue also means assessment, safe transport, appropriate veterinary care, infection control, nutrition, recovery, sterilization where indicated, and a sustainable plan for the animal after the emergency.

5. FROM AWARENESS TO ACTION

The poster’s message can be converted into a simple community response plan.

1	SEE	Notice animals showing dehydration, severe injury, breathing difficulty, prolonged inability to stand, seizures, severe bleeding or other urgent signs.
2	PROTECT	Move the animal only when it is safe to do so; protect from traffic, heat, rain and cold. Avoid unnecessary handling of painful or frightened animals.
3	STABILIZE	Provide a calm, shaded/dry space. Offer appropriate water and food when safe, while prioritizing veterinary assessment for serious illness or injury.
4	CONNECT	Contact a veterinarian, municipal animal-welfare service, shelter or credible rescue organization. Share location, photos and the animal’s condition.
5	FOLLOW UP	Recovery may require medication, nutrition, wound care, vaccination/parasite control, sterilization, rehabilitation or adoption/relocation planning.

THE CENTRAL MESSAGE

RESCUE • CARE • PROTECT • GIVE THEM A CHANCE

Street animals cannot explain where it hurts, when they last ate, or why they are afraid. Their behaviour, posture and physical condition often become their only language. Human beings can respond by choosing prevention over indifference, compassion over cruelty, and organized care over temporary fixes.

They may have no home and no voice — but they have a heart, and they feel everything.

Jai Gau Mata | Jai Bharat